THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

A New Direction from Piedmont—The Piedmontese Monarchy and the National Party.

From the London Daily News.

As the request of some friends of Italy, who desire that at this particular time the views of what is called the National Italian Party should be placed before the English public, we publish the subjoined paper from the pen of Signor Mazzini.

We have received letters from various points of the even and other countries, from men who, while they profess themselves believers in our ideal, yet insist on the same time, that before that ideal can be realized Italy must be regained for the Italians, and say that the secret of success lies in bringing the greatest possible number of elements to bear upon that aim, and that element in importance among those elements, because already organized, are the 20,000 men whom the Piedmontese monarchy might bring against Austria. They believe, therefore, that we, by our anti-monarchical teachings, are committing the grave error of extinguishing that possible assistance from the coming national war.

These letters and conversations are actuated by any spirit of hostility, unpatriotic jealousy, or an absence of conviction. The writers of them do not rally the patriotic arena with calumny, nor, like the Piedmontese monarchical press, attribute to us noble and friends of Austria. They fear in us an error, not crimes, and they do not therefore, discard our doctrines, as largely bestow upon those questioners, but are entitled to a calm answer and fraternal explanation. This answer and explanation we will give them here, by reconciliating the causes which separate us from the Piedmontese monarchy, and for the last time placing in a clear light the practical question now agitated between the men of the party of action and the men of the Piedmontese Government.

We have said, the practical question. And it is indeed the principal question between us. The theoretical question has long been decided in our favor by all men of good faith in Italy, and we need spend but few words upon it.

We are theoretically republicans; not, as has been supposed, because the republic is a preconceived ideal in which we inexorably persist, careless alike of time, space, or the condition of the peoples. We believe the often-repeated assertion, that a people called upon to govern themselves in a republic would be ruined; republicans in habits and belief, to be Italian. Republican institutions must form, not find, republicans; nor will they ever be formed under monarchical institutions. But we do believe that the republican form of government demands a certain degree of moral education—a conscious capacity of progress, the sense of a common duty, of a collective life, of nationality. We should not propose the republican form or government to men who, like the Turks and Hindoos, believe in the religious dogma of fatality.

We find, however, that this thrill of nationality—this aspiration towards a common progressive life—does actively influence almost all the peoples of actual Europe, and we find that, in Italy especially, the amount of national education which can exist in political servitude is entirely republican. We find that all the Italian traditions and memories of power and glory, and all the habits of social life are republican, while there exists in Italy no royal race endeared to the country by by the initiation or fulfilment of any national mission, and no compact and respected aristocracy, without which monarchy cannot endure. In Italy, then, the aspiration of our hearts is in harmony with historical tradition, and the tendencies inherent in our people.

For these reasons we are, and shall remain, theoretically republicans. But precisely because we believe the republic to be the inevitable future decreed by the instinct of the Italians and the logical necessities of our development, we are neither exclusive, intolerant, nor fanatical worshipers of our own faith. The future cannot betray that faith, and it matters little to us individually so long as our mere theoretical belief remains unshaken—whether our last years be passed beneath the shadow of that or another banner. We live not in ourselves, but in the nation. We have never been false to our belief, but whenever we have beheld our countrymen almost universally deluded into concentrating the majority of their forces upon an easier method of achieving the common redemption, we have found within us the courage of silence, and of quietly awaiting—amid the calumnies of our enemies, and the reproaches of those more excitable and less capable of sacrifice—saving our own party—until the experiments were exhausted.

The republicans of Naples, in 1799, were the first to raise the free banner of Italy from beneath the dust of four centuries, to consecrate it by the grasp of victory, and afterwards, by a martyrdom more sublime than victory itself. They might—and self been more potent with them than their countrymen good—have cried to the monarchists who followed Pitt: "Out of our ranks! with you only appeared upon our roll in the train of foreign standards." You were crawling, trembling creatures in the footsteps of Charles V., and the bastards of the Medici, when men of our faith were protesting by conspiracy and dying for their murdered country. Nevertheless, the republicans of the Neapolitan movement of 1820, and the Piedmontese movement of 1821, were silent as to their political convictions. They voluntarily enrolled themselves beneath the standards of the two reigning powers, and were betrayed by both. In 1830, Ciro Menotti—a republican at heart—again tried the experiment with the Duke of Modena, who betrayed and sent him to the scaffold. In 1847, the very men whose secret republican associations had prepared the ground for insurrection, when they saw the masses of Italy almost universally hailing Pius IX. as the apostle and leader of Italian redemption, rallied round his banner—not believing, but resigned—and were, in their turn, betrayed. In 1848, when Lombardy, Piedmont, Liguria, and part of the centre, hailed in Charles Albert the man destined to drive out the foreigner, the republicans—nor can calumny avail aught against historical documentary evidence—willingly accepted the compact offered by the monarchy, that the political destinies of the nation should not be decided until the war was concluded; and were silent until the day when that compact was betrayed by the King, and they saw the approaching ruin of every patriotic hope.

Even after his, when the Piedmontese monarchy assumed the leadership of the second movement, republican Rome decreed that her troops should fight side by side with the royal forces the battle of their common country. And later still, when, forgetting Milan, Venice, Novara, everything, men like Manin and their followers changed, and preached that the salvation of Italy rested with the hero of Charles Albert, we, the republicans (only requiring conditions preventing the possibility of a fresh violation of compact) to suspend all exclusively republican teachings, and unite with them to rally around the one sole principle which no party, without sinking into tyranny, can deny—the sovereignty of the national will.

The best among the monarchical party replied that union with us was impossible except by our betraying the principle of the national sovereignty, and proclaiming Victor Emanuel liberator and king—a proposal at once ridiculous and anti-Italian. No minority, whether monarchical or republican, has any right to substitute its own to the country's will. As to proclaiming Victor Emanuel liberator and king, I have heard of peoples hailing as such a man who presented himself to them surrounded with the halo of victory over a foreign foe amid the blood and dust of battle; but I doubt if anyone except the Italian monarchists ever decreed the liberator's crown to one over whose throne hung no records save the fatal records of defeat and defiant.

It is an ill mode of regenerating a people to teach them the adulation of an hypothesis rather than the energy of battle.

It is, then, no question of republican theory that has held us separate from the Piedmontese monarchy. Ought, however, such illusions to last for ever? And because the courtiers and agents of a king choose for the tenth time to whisper in our ears, "Trust your fate of him, and Italy will arise," ought we to blindly trust, and neglect our own duties in the hope that another will at last fulfil his, abstain from the exercise of our faculties, and renounce all examination of the practical side of the question, the possibility of the enterprise?

We ought not, and we will not. We do not hinder any king, in whatever part of Italy he may arise, from attempting the freedom of the country; but we can not, standing as we do, between our duty and the promise of the oppressed, delay indefinitely that work to which every patriot is bound for the sake of an uncertain hope.

Hope, did I say? No; that which seems such to others appears an absolute impossibility to us.

The first condition for ascertaining the possibility or impossibility of any enterprise is to clearly ascertain and define its aim.

That which we demand, that which Italy demands before and above all—combined with as much administrative and economical liberty as possible—is National Unity.

Our Italian martyrs of the last half century have not died because the price of food was excessive in Italy, because the finances of our country are despotically and corruptly managed, nor because the taxation of the agricultural laborers of Lower Lombardy and some other parts is so heavy and unjust—they did not die because labor is ill-paid, taxation ill-organized, or commerce impeded—they died for an idea.

This idea, which sprung up by providential design, in the centre of our land before the days of Rome, which became an instinct in our people during the Italian wars, which was first converted into a thought by Dante, and has since continually reappeared, even more potent and distinct, in the writings of our greatest intellects, and the aspirations of our noblest hearts—this idea has name—Italy. The sacred word has periodically gone up from the scaffold unto God. It illumines, traced by the hands of noble victims, our prison walls; it doubled the strength of our soldiers, and enabled them in 1812 to endure the frosts of Russia and the sufferings of the retreat; it supported our exiles when fighting for Greek or Spanish freedom; it resounded on the lips of the million from Venice to Rome, from Milan to Palermo, in 1848; and it unites the working man and citizen in secret associations from the passes of the Stelvio to the Island of Lampedusa. True it is that this name of Italy speaks to its worshipers no word of hope or encouragement to the slavish soul; it speaks to all of liberty, of a social organization founded on justice, of common order, common rights, and common material and intellectual progress.

But secure of being able to solve the social problem when they are once free and united, the Italians do not now select it as their mot d'ordre in the struggle; they do not make of it the object of their effort or their sacrifice. What they now demand is a country, a political fact to represent them among friends and foes, a common pact to unite the twenty-six millions that well between the Alps and the sea in harmonious

[illegible]

[illegible] the monarchy of Piedmont give us unity? How would it achieve it?

Peacefully, or by open war?

We grant that this aim can never be reached by the first means. We know that others, the Prime Minister the first, have spoken of the hope to effect it by diplomacy. We know that many deceive themselves because they can effect to believe in their secret, by peace alone, some form of a federal union, whatever that is. Even if our aim were limited to administrative autonomy, and a more progressive system of the Italian States, still we do not believe that the spectacle of the benefits resulting from liberty to four millions of Italians, the shame of our servitude, the influence of our example, or even the suggestions of some free sovereign, would induce the Governments of the other Italian States to yield. But even if Piedmont were to present this seductive spectacle, if the monarchy, forsaking in a different course from that it has adopted, were to make of its own State an oasis, an island, a novel State, even if we were to resign ourselves to inertia, and prolong the example for an indefinite period, no man of sane mind can believe that six of the sisters of Italy would one day voluntarily descend from their thrones to give place to the Sardinian monarchy; that the Pope would say, "Behold! Rome is yours—I myself abolish the temporal power;" and that all the foreign governments of Europe, unconstrained thereto by imposing facts achieved, or an universal, energetic, and armed manifestation of the whole Italian people, would stand quietly to witness the rise of a nation whose mere existence must entirely transform the economical and political conditions of Europe. We do not believe there exist in Italy two individuals able to look one another in the face and attempt to delude each other with such a hope as this without laughter.

The only method remaining, then, is war.

Can the Piedmontese monarchy initiate war?

No, it cannot. The Minister who should advise the King to attempt such an enterprise, with Europe at peace, would deserve to be tried for high treason to the monarchy. A third-rate Power presuming to invade possessions held by a first-rate Power, in virtue of mutual treaties, would instantly have all the European Governments for foes. The invading Prince would infallibly lose his crown—the insurrection thus provoked by him would have none of the prestige of a spontaneous manifestation of the popular conscience, the expression of an eternal right, respected, however unwillingly, by the Governments and hailed with enthusiasm by the people. The initiative of the Sardinian monarchy, supposing it possible, would be fatal alike to the monarchy and the insurrection. However, it is useless to discuss this hypothesis. Neither King, Minister, nor man of the Monarchical Party dream of taking the initiative.

The Piedmontese monarchy can only follow an initiative taken by others, seize the opportunity given by a war between some other first-rate Power with Austria, or come forward after a triumphant popular insurrection has cleared the way.

The first case is improbable, and would at any rate condemn Italy to remain quiet for an indefinite period awaiting the uncertain issue of the war. But should it arise, the only war against Austria in which the Piedmontese monarchy could take part as an ally must spring from France, Imperial France. Let us suppose the war begun, and the King of Sardinia allied with Bonaparte—can any one in his senses believe that it would enter into the views of Bonaparte to create the unity of Italy, and present the crown to the Sardinian king? to make of the Mediterranean an Italian lake? to found a State destined by its geographical position, by the extent of its coasts, and by the historical tendencies of its population, to rival, if not surpass, France herself in commercial activity? to add in creating a Italy—for Italy will never be a nation without achieving a greater or less degree of liberty—in the face of enslaved France? No. In a war fought by Imperial France, in concert with Piedmont, against Austria, the most brilliant hypothesis of the monarchists is this: Since neither the traditional policy of France nor the Bonaparte interest could allow an extended and powerful State to hold the keys of the Alps, without some pledge of equilibrium or compensation, an enlargement of the Sardinian kingdom would entail French dominion—direct or indirect matters not—in the south of Italy. Milan conceded to Piedmont would imply Naples handed over to Murat, or some other project of France.

And this is in fact—I believe I may assert—the hypothesis accepted by the Sardinian Government, an hypothesis in the highest degree criminal and anti-Italian; an hypothesis which would produce fresh dismemberments in Italy—for Italy would never accept Murat—and substitute for the old abhorred and condemned Bourbon monarchy, the cortège of new interests, servile vanities and hopes which rise up around every new Government; and the domineering influence of a first-rate Power, for that of a Government now completely isolated and despised by both monarchical and popular Europe.

There remains then only the second case; that of a popular initiative in Lombardy, which should leave the path of action open to the Sardinian monarchy, and give it the chance of repeating to its European confederates the declarations of its dispatches in 1848, "If I go, I go for your safety and my own; I am compelled to raise my banner in the plains of Lombardy to prevent the raising of the Republican banner there."

The question once put on that ground, we might repeat to the monarchists what we have so often said to them without ever receiving a reply. If a popular insurrection be indispensable to enable the monarchical redeemer to descend upon the arena of battle, of what use is it to discuss the question at all? Unite with us in the work of preparing and promoting that popular revolution, in order that the monarchy you invoke may come and complete it.

And come it will, without fail, invoked or not, liberator or destroyer. No king of Piedmont could retain his throne three days after a renewal of the five days of Milan, were he to abstain from joining in the struggle.

I said liberator or destroyer. We believe destroyer of the insurrection. And this, not because Charles Albert, either from the incapacity of his Generals, or worse, betrayed the Italian war—such incapacity is not a necessity of a royal war—but because every idea generated in his own mode of action, every flag followed by a train of inevitable consequences, and the consequents of a monarchical flag leading the movement would inevitably be fatal to it.

Our war must not, in kindle the popular enthusiasm to the highest pitch, and a king cannot make of himself a revolutionist; he dreads the originality of a people that has once learned to combat and conquer, and he therefore avoids calling the masses to action, and reduces the war to a mere problem of regular forces and strategic combinations. Our war must rely upon and seek in every way the active sympathy of the people—while a king naturally endeavors to procure, by dint of concessions, the support of some governments. Our war will have to invade the Tyrol, and, if need be, bombard Trieste; and a king would be restrained by the pretensions of the Germanic Confederation upon the first, and the exigencies of foreign commerce concerning the second. Our war would appeal to and rally round its flag the numerous foreign elements that will hasten to its aid; while a king would be obliged to reject the Poles for fear of irritating the Czar, and the French for fear of the Emperor. Our war will have to win to its cause the inferior soldiery, by introducing the principle of the suffrage in its army; this also a royal war will never do. Our war will derive its greatest support from political decrees calculated to gain the favor of the masses, and a king would seek to separate the war as much as possible from all political concerns. Our war, like the first French revolution and the Spanish war, must seek its leaders among the men, of whatever class, who have given proofs of devotion on the barricades, or revealed in the first open engagements the native genius which gave to France a Hoche and Marceau, and to Spain a Palarcos and a Mina; while a king, from the inevitable influence of that aristocratic element, the necessary link between throne and people, would impose upon the revolution incapable leaders, who would again leave the passes of the Alps open to the enemy, consume the energies of the army before the fortresses of the quadrilateral, and prepare the way for a second route of Novara. Our war, restrained by no compact save with the future, looking for inspiration to the nation alone, and acknowledging no judge but the people, will admit of neither compromise nor transaction with the enemy, till the aim be achieved; while a king, hemmed in, besieged and terrified by the influence of his relatives, spread around him by monarchical tradition, diplomacy, and the fear of making other Governments his foes, would listen to the first proposals of peace—whether on the Adige, or at Campo Formio, matters little—baited with some territorial aggrandisement, and the hope of a larger estate in the future.

But let us imagine a king capable of emancipating himself from the exigencies of the principle he represents, from the traditions and treaties of foreign monarchies, from the artifices of diplomacy, from the aristocratic influences which are the props of his throne, from dread of the future demands of the people; let us suppose him a man rarely gifted in heart and mind, incarnating in himself the spirit of the revolution, possessing all the energy of the Committee of Public Safety, the honesty of Washington, the genius of our warriors of former days; let us imagine such a man determined to destroy the dominion of Austria, and overthrow the theocracy of Naples. Transport Pius, and Modena, let us suppose him to have reached the frontier of the Roman States—what will he do? what can he do with the Pope?

Can a king give us Rome? Can a king bid the old man, who, herself of all mankind, "Quit that throne before which almost all the Governments of Europe still prostrate themselves in feigned reverence, before which I too knelt yesterday; I assume it in thy stead?" Can a king thus make of himself at one and the same time a political revolutionist and a religious reformer? unite in his single person the characters of Cromwell and Henry VIII.?

That papal throne, that old man, the representative in Rome of things that are dead and passed away, are for us nothing. We can unite in one vast league the peoples worthy of worshipping a phantom, arrayed back by bodily prostrating in the face of all Europe the eternal truth, and can say to that old man: "In the name of God and the people, vanish—we are more religious, more believing than thou." But a king! the all of kings, a combatant by the side of the man who ten years ago re-established the Pope in Rome? That old man is still the source of that authority in the name of which kings govern; he is the common centre towards which converge the rays emanating from every power, founded on the old theory of privilege, whether of family or class. The Pope once fallen, the monarchies, deprived of all basis, will fall too. Can a king remain calm, and yet strike that blow which would make him the destroyer of the very principle in virtue of which he reigns?

No; the Piedmontese monarchy can never give us the Unity we demand. Those who speak to the people of Italian unity under the Sardinian king, either seek to delude them, or are themselves strangely deluded.

And the monarchy knows this—the men in power who are initiated in its designs know this, and laugh at—while they make use of—their poor dupes. From Balbo or Azeglio, from Gioberti to Durando, from Cavour to the envoys sent to Bonaparte, the idea of

There remains then only the second case; that of a popular initiative in Lombardy, which should leave the path of action open to the Sardinian monarchy, and give it the chance of repeating to its European confederates the declarations of its dispatches in 1848, "If I go, I go for your safety and my own; I am compelled to raise my banner in the plains of Lombardy to prevent the raising of the Republican banner there."

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

Another Reported Surrender of the Liberal Forces—Renewed Offer to Place Mexico Under British Protection—New Government Proposed, &c.

NEW-ORLEANS, Sunday, Dec. 26.

The steamer Tennessee arrived to-day, brings New-Orleans dates of 22d. The news is undecisive. The prophecy which is high treason of President Buchanan, and states the position it takes in regard to Mexico will induce the European Powers to recover their present attitude. It also states that the Liberals will meet more adverse fortune at Washington, and events of importance will be so unanimously for establishing peace in Colombia and Mexico, as to [illegible] the passage.

Comonfort was still in Mexico, but was prepared for the worst. Commercial matters were unchanged. General Marquez had arrived at Cuernavaca from Guadalajara by Doctor's Pass. The Government had refused to advance any more money to the Railroad Company. A new Government, under the guard of a Tribunal-Circle, had been proposed at the City.

A brig, consisting of five French and three Spanish men-of-war, was lying at Sacrificios. The United States sloop-of-war Saratoga was also there. Another French man-of-war was seen off Vera Cruz. It was reported that Miramon had been found in the house of Mr. Forster's house in the city of Mexico. It was reported that Miramon had offered to place himself under English protection, and that Mr. Wasdale had gone to England to arrange matters.

Santa Anna had defeated Carrera at the hacienda of Tlapacoyan.

A Spanish brig-of-war was at Tampico.

General Alatriste defeated the Zulcaga forces between Tuxpan.

A letter was found on the person of Contreras, containing a written statement that the Spanish frigate Gonzalez was lost off Lobos Island while preparing to attack Vera Cruz.

News from New-Mexico.

MEETING OF THE LEGISLATURE—SUCCESS OF THE MOVEMENT AGAINST THE INDIANS.

St. Louis, Monday, Dec. 27.

The Santa Fé mail of the 6th inst. reached Independence on Saturday. The contractor reports the snow on the route three feet deep, and the weather very cold.

The Legislature was to convene the day the mail left. Delegates-elect are to Nov. 21.

Colonel Miles had pursued the Indians into their mountain fastnesses, over regions heretofore unknown, and the white men were pulling them to pieces wherever they found them.

Many of the ranches were soon to be made out, and much information respecting the country.

Major Brown had returned to Fort Defiance on the 20th inst. He had had no regular fight with the Indians, but had killed six of them in various skirmishes. Captain Vanorsdale, of a company of spies, had been badly wounded.

Col. Bonneville and Superintendent Collins go to Fort Defiance during the armistice to treat with the Navajoes. Their action will be final either for peace or war. Judge Benn will take the District vacated by Judge Watrous.

Further Outrages in Kansas.

FRONT SHOT ATTACKED BY MONTGOMERY'S BAND—GENERAL FEELINGS REGARDED KILLED.

St. Louis, Monday, Dec. 27.

The Jefferson City Examiner learns from a reliable source that Fort Scott, Kansas, on the night of the 16th inst., was attacked by Captain Montgomery, at the head of one hundred men, and the town taken. Then the Examiner's informant escaped, five or six persons had been killed by them. The object of the raid, it was presumed, was to release one of Captain Montgomery's men, who was confined there under an indictment for murder. It was feared the town would be entirely destroyed.

A dispatch from Kansas City says that the Harrisonville (Missouri) Democrat, of the 20th inst., states that on last Monday a band of thieves and cutthroats from Kansas Territory, entered Vernon County, Missouri, and killed Davis Crum, and stole a lot of cattle, on their way through Missouri. About the same time Captain Hamilton's band also Missouri, driven from the Little Osage River, and stole a negro woman belonging to Gov. McLean's prisoner, carrying the latter into the Territory, but releasing him on the following day. An express had been sent to Gov. Stewart, of Missouri, for assistance to protect life and property.

CERTIFICATES OF ELECTION DELIVERED TO THE NEW STATE OFFICERS, &C.

ALBANY, Monday, Dec. 27.

The Governor elect, Mr. Morgan, and the new State officers received their certificates of election today. It is not true, as stated in some New-York papers, that the State Canvassers awarded a certificate of election to Mr. Pierre Hamilton, in the Fifth Congressional District. The Attorney-General is understood to hold that the Governor has not the power to order special elections for Representatives in Congress in New-York City Districts, under article 1, section 3, paragraph 4, of the United States Constitution.

Governor Morgan arrived in town to-day.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Tucker, visits New-York to-morrow.

Governor King sends the Commissioners to-morrow afternoon, to hear their report in regard to the removal of Quarantine.

The Southern Pacific Railroad.

NEW-ORLEANS, Saturday, Dec. 25.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Convention, adjourned to meet at Marshall, Texas, on the 19th of January. President Monroe, on receiving a vote of thanks, congratulated the Convention on its success. The stockholders are in high spirits.

The Company's trust deeds indebtedness is about $[illegible]. Their entire liabilities are $500,000. To cover the former there are $135,000 in the hands of Mr. Parsons, and $110,000 can be obtained from other sources, leaving $65,000 to be provided by the New-Orleans and other stockholders. Nothing remains to be done but to get Texas to relinquish the suit for possession of the charter, which will undoubtedly be done.

Loss of the Steamer Metropolis on the Ohio River.

CINCINNATI, Monday, Dec. 27.

The steamer Metropolis, from Pittsburg bound to New-Orleans, was ashore yesterday morning during a heavy fog some fifty miles below this city, she immediately broke in two, and is now a complete wreck. Fifty lives were lost. The Metropolis had a cargo of one hundred tons of produce and Pittsburg manufactures. The boat was owned in Pittsburg and valued at $[illegible], insured for $14,000. The whole loss is estimated at $100,000.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Exhibitions in the City Hall Park.—In the Comptroller's estimates for past years there has always figured, and doubtless in the estimates for the ensuing year there will also figure, a goodly item for the maintenance and repair of the inclosure which we dignify with the name of the "City Hall Park." The property, such as it is, belongs to the public; and strangers desirous of seeing the elephant, may step in from Broadway, Chambers-street or Park-row at no other expense than a shilling to "the man in a white hat, who stands at every gate, and that of both or shot leather. Some enterprising Israelites, of late, have undertaken to relieve the monotony of the inclosure by the exhibition of wanted lions in the rear of the City Hall, and yesterday we counted three pairs of pantaloons, four light-drawers, a brand a half pairs of lady's hose, two cotton night-caps and a flannel shirt, swinging proudly to the breeze directly under the windows of the chamber of the Board of Aldermen. Perhaps this demonstration may have been made in honor of the expected arrival of Senator Douglas, as the City's guest; or perhaps—for all things are possible—perhaps the laundress hires the use of the land from the City, and pays into the Chamberlain sufficient to compensate for the ridicule to which her exhibition gives rise. It was one of Napoleon's best maxims that "dirty linen should be made up at home." What says the laundress?

Attempted Suicide by an Ex-Councilman.—Mr. Edward Mezzaro, a member of the Board of Councilmen of 1856, attempted suicide, on Sunday afternoon, by swallowing arsenic. He took a room at the lodging-house No. 21 Bowery, swallowed the poisonous drug, which he had previously procured at a store, and went to bed. The fact of his having taken the poison was soon discovered. He was immediately taken to the Hospital; the usual remedies were applied, and it is believed he will recover. Mr. Mezzaro was appointed to a clerkship in the Street Commissioner's Office, under the late Joseph Taylor, but, upon the death of Mr. Taylor, he resigned his office. Some years ago he was Assistant Captain of the Seventh-Ward Police, in which Ward his family still resides. Depression of spirits, produced by pecuniary troubles, is said to be the cause of the attempt to terminate his existence.

The Escape of Dr. Gaillardet—Officer Baker Indicted and Admitted to Bail.—On Saturday, among the batch of indictments presented by the Grand Jury to the Recorder in the Court of General Sessions, was a bill against Edward C. Baker, the officer who had charge of Dr. Gaillardet at the time of his recent escape. Captain Dowling, of the Sixth Precinct, armed with a bench warrant, issued by the Court, arrested Baker, yesterday morning, and took him before Recorder Barnard, by whom he was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000. Alderman McSpedon, through whose influence with Judge Russell he obtained his situation as Officer in the Court of Sessions, becoming his surety. Baker is charged in the indictment with a misdemeanor, in permitting Dr. Gaillardet to escape. It is already understood that no opposition will be offered to the trial of his case next term, when Judge Russell will occupy the Bench.

Tribute to Robert Owen.—The friends of Robert Owen, the well-known communistic philanthropist, met last night, in Stuyvesant Institute, to express their belief in the principles of which, during his life, he was a prominent advocate, and to put on record their feelings of regret at his loss. The meeting was not a large one. Mr. Parks was elected chairman, and Mr. W. H. Burr Secretary. After a brief speech from the former, Mrs. Ernestine L. Rose submitted a series of resolutions attributing to Mr. Owen a character of the noblest benevolence and most disinterested philanthropy, because of his devotion to the cause of moral and social reform. The resolutions were adopted unanimously. Mrs. Rose then addressed the audience at length, and was followed by Mr. Vale and others, who, in the main, agreed with her estimate of Mr. Owen's services and character.

More Indictments against the Three-Times-Indicted City Officials.—The late Grand Jury have for the fourth time indicted Charles Tucker, Charles Devlin and others,—among whom Francis P. Vidal, Joseph B. Taylor, and Terence Farley figure in a third indictment only, for sundry frauds and peculations on the City Treasury,—the indictment charging them with obtaining money under false pretences. They were yesterday arrested on Bench Warrants issued by the Court of Sessions, and brought before the Recorder, who held them to bail in $2,500 each.

Changes in the Time-Table of the Hudson River Railroad.—Important changes will be made in the Time-table of the Hudson River Railroad on Wednesday, the 29th inst., by the addition of an Express train to and from Albany, leaving New-York and Albany at 3:15 P. M. This will make four through Express trains daily to Albany and Troy—leaving New-York at 6, and 11:15 A. M., and 3:15 and 4:30 P. M. There will be other changes in the local trains for which we refer to the advertisement.

Thrown from a Horse and Killed.—John W. Wilson, who was thrown, a few days since, from his horse, at the corner of Fourteenth-street and Fourth-avenue, in front of a Fourth-avenue car, and was run over by the car, died yesterday at the Hospital from the effect of the injuries he received. An inquest will be held upon the body to-day.

Fire on Staten Island.—A fire broke out at 6:30 P. M. on Sunday, in the barn of Richard Tysen, on the Richmond road, about four miles from Quarantine Landing, Staten Island. The barn with its contents of grain and hay, was entirely consumed. Mr. Tysen's loss is estimated at over $300. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to be the result of an accident.

Fatally Burned.—John O'Harran, an infant child, whose parents reside at No. 11 Peck-slip, was fatally burned yesterday by his clothes taking fire from the stove. An inquest was held yesterday upon the body, and a verdict of "accidental death" was rendered.

Cooper Institute.—The Oratorio of the "Creation" will be given here to-night, for the benefit of the "German Ladies' Society." Some of the best German singers in the country, and a chorus composed of the best Societies, will assist. It will unquestionably be a fine performance.

Police Reports.

The Fourth Ward Murder.—Michael Flynn, who killed the sailor, Freeman Cutting, on Sunday morning, at the house of ill-repute No. 121 Roosevelt-street, claims to have perpetrated the killing in self-defence. He has employed counsel, and seems very sanguine of getting off clear. Several of his friends called yesterday morning to see him, and he received them smilingly. An inquest was held yesterday at the Fourth Ward Station-house, upon the body of the murdered man. Mary Noonan, Maria Manley and Thomas Burns were sworn. Their evidence contained no facts additional to those published in yesterday's Times. The medical testimony showed that the carotid artery was nearly severed, and that death was caused by the consequent hemorrhage. The Jury rendered the following verdict: "That the deceased came to his death by hemorrhage from a stab in the neck at the hands of Michael Flynn, at No. 121 Roosevelt-street, New-York, Dec. 27, 1858." After the giving of the verdict the prisoner was locked up in the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The Bowen & McNamee Robbery.—The Police are still on a sharp look-out for the parties who committed the successful burglary, a short time since, upon the store of Messrs. Bowen & McNamee, on which occasion, it will be remembered, $5,000 worth of silk goods were stolen. A young man, named John McCown, alias "Cobbler Jack," was arrested yesterday, on suspicion of being a partner in the enterprise. The antecedents of the accused are declared to be not exactly irreproachable, and there are other circumstances telling strongly against him. Mrs. Fisk, the woman who rented the apartment in the tenement house adjoining the store, from which—a hole being cut through the wall—the entrance was effected into the store, is still confined in prison. She refuses to "peach," as she says, but her familiarity with the slang phrases of the profession has had a somewhat damaging effect upon her declarations of innocence. The police are sanguine of being on the right track of the guilty parties and the missing goods.

The Clancy Libel Suit.—The investigation in this case, which was set down for yesterday, was postponed till Wednesday on account of the absence of material witnesses. At the next sitting the case opens for the defence.

Arrest by the Harbor Police.—Officer Burdett, of the Harbor Police, arrested to-day, William McKead, seaman, who had shipped on board of the ship Storm King, bound to San Francisco, on a charge preferred by his wife for abandonment. He was locked up in the First Ward Station-house.

Herring & Co.'s Burglar-Proof Safes.—The following certificate from the well-known Banking House of Markell, Darrow & Co., of Dubuque, Iowa, will show the strength and security of these celebrated Safes, when made of boiler-iron, and chilled-iron plates with cross-bar grating combined:

"Dubuque, Iowa, Dec. 13, 1858.

To Messrs. S. C. Herring & Co.:

Sirs: In reply to your letter of inquiry, we would say that a short time since, one of the locks upon the Burglar-Proof Box got out of order (not the Hall Lock,) and we were obliged to call in an experienced locksmith, who, with all the necessary tools at command, succeeded in cutting through the outer plates and cross-grating to the Lock, after two days of constant and hard work. The Hall Lock has never given us any trouble, and we have great confidence in it; also, (as you may suppose,) in your Burglar-Proof Box, after so thorough a trial of its strength. Respectfully yours,
MARKELL, DARROW & CO."

HERRING'S PATENT CHAMPION SAFE has never failed to preserve the contents when tested by fire, and with a Burglar-Proof Box, as described above, renders them the most perfect security, both against fire and burglars, of any Safe ever offered to the public. The largest and most perfect assortment of Fire and Thief Proof Safes in the United States, are on sale by

"Improvement so all.—We published a day or two since an article concerning Prof. Wood's new Vegetable Hair Dyes, in which several articles composed of nitrate of silver and sugar of lead were severely condemned. It is gratifying to us to be able to say that the celebrated Restorative, 'Retonstreet's Inimitable,' which has for the past fifteen years been manufactured, and in use, in our city, is no such poisonous compound. The formula for its preparation has been submitted to our best physicians and met with their approval. The proprietors (W. E. HAGAN & CO.) inform us that in no case has harm resulted from its use, and had we no corroborating testimony than such was the fact, we would accept their statement with perfect confidence. We, therefore, assure our readers, in the words of their advertisement, that 'it may be used with as much as water and with as much safety.' Rejoice, then, ye with gray hairs and bald heads, for the 'Inimitable' will restore the former to its original beauty, and cover the latter with luxuriant growth.'

A Word of warning.—There is nothing more despicable than stealing the reputation of a reliable article to impose upon the community an inferior and worthless one, and yet it is often done. Fifteen years ago, C. Heinstreet & Co. introduced a Hair Restorative, under the name of "Inimitable Hair Coloring." Its wonderful restorative properties made it immensely popular, and gray and bald heads were like to become a thing of the past, when the country was flooded with imitations, the use of which was not only useless but absolutely injurious. The original preparation is a scientific combination, made with oil and stimulating spirits, affording an agreeable hair-wash, while all the imitations are made with water, making the hair harsh, dry and frizzy, requiring, after it dries, the use of oil or wash to make it look decently. We would therefore advise our readers to buy nothing but the original Inimitable Hair Coloring or Restorative, which is reliable.—Troy Whig. 50 cents a bottle.

The New-York Times, Tuesday, December 28, 1858.

[illegible] of the Nor'-west, the great [illegible] which from which you can have navigation to Liverpool direct, we think that our Atlantic brethren are looking a little too exclusively to the Southwest, and are too much occupied with the Nicaragua and Panama routes, and southern railroad building, in the unmerited neglect of this region. Here we have the healthiest climate on the face of the earth—the point of all others to start our Pacific Railroad from—the region of all others to furnish the iron for it manufactured,—the delivery depôt for it, if imported,—rich in minerals, rich in lumber, rich in our fisheries, and, as demonstrated by the experience of the last Summer, unexampledly rich in our agricultural capacities. And yet the army South and General Walker have managed to absorb your attention so completely that even our Northern people seem to have overlooked the fact that Stevens' route, with a starting point at the mouth of the St. Louis River, is the most feasible and the most desirable land route to the Pacific. Our friends at St. Paul are inclined to think they are somewhat central to the universe—but as we are at least a couple of hundred miles nearer to New-York, we consider ourselves the very commercial and geographical focus. We are as near to you, via the Lakes and Buffalo, as your neighbor Chicago; and we shall hold vegetables next year to the New-York market. If we do not beat all the world in potatoes, then you may say that your correspondent is no "child of Erin."

As a point, then, on the world's surface—are long as be an important one—at the present moment the most important undeveloped point perhaps on the Continent—I shall occasionally remind the world, through the TIMES, of our existence, and claim a recognition of our hereafter as an object of as much interest as the possibility of a State among the half civilized people of Mexico and Central America. We have half-breeds and Indians among us as well as they, and you are aware, too, that we have claim-jumpers and land-stealers quite as dangerous as the most rapacious filibusters.

[illegible] half century of villainy and perfidy unexampled the recent bankrupt descent upon Superior City. The [illegible] of a town by ruffianly speculators perhaps best illustrates the actual condition of affairs. The honest claimants, who have [illegible] titles, either bonds and deeds from the original [illegible] and occupants, whose rights had been [illegible] by the judgment of the late Secretary of the Interior, McClelland, with legal relation to the [illegible] settlement—the insurgents, have [illegible] the state of South street, approaching [illegible] which are now fighting with one [illegible] the density of wolves quarrelling [illegible] over a carcass. The night is indeed one of great [illegible] everywhere burning brush heaps, fierce [illegible] belonging lots, teams, drawing lumber [illegible] and the clamors of the mob. It [illegible] to illustrate to what a state of morals as [illegible] exhibited by the men who are engaged [illegible] Company—men who would long ago have [illegible] and home had it not [illegible] Mr. Justice Tourgee's new law has [illegible] them to disregard their covenants, and [illegible] in a tract selected, settled, and [illegible] from illegal preemption, at the expense of [illegible] people.

All these proceedings, as I have the best reason [illegible] would be illegal if they were not set [illegible] by Mr. Secretary Shaw. He defiantly announces his intentions with regard to the original settlers and occupants, and declares that they shall receive no further countenance or favors from him. The same document is not very fortunate for the judicial investigation. His plan is to enjoin the application of the emigrant town [illegible] set up by the insurgents against the County Judge, and to permit them to prove up the [illegible] claims of JOHN GRANT, CHARLES [illegible] (initiated the 15th of July last on a [illegible] site selected four years ago?) and perhaps of THOMAS RAE, on Sioux ecrio—and to enter the [illegible] as Superior City. Upon the [illegible], the insurgents, by their trustees(!) are immediately to set about the partition of lots. How they will do this without fight from the fact that one of [illegible] the rival leader PEASE, is armed with anxiety to [illegible] with forty acres. WALKER [illegible] twenty acres hardest, is swelling proportions with the thermometer at zero, over his offer to sell to some 40 lots; and the third trustee, [illegible] to stick behind his brethren in his [illegible] for land. This KIDDALL, by the way, was [illegible] of the original proprietors of the site, and has [illegible] interest, which he is now seeking to [illegible] by this outlawry upon his associates. The [illegible] overlooks the scene, its Napoleon, with [illegible] through and beneath the [illegible] Turkey, Gen. GRANT's hundred bayonet [illegible] to the smallest fractional lot, measured by [illegible] of the most modest and humble squatter.

If Mr. Secretary THOMPSON could be so far spirited [illegible] as to look in on us here [illegible] abandoning his seat in the Interior Department, I imagine that he would be well content for the future to abide by the adjudications of his predecessor, and eschew the innovations of the [illegible] young hope of his Department on the established law. The land law involves so many and such important interests that the Secretary should [illegible] it radically, without the authority of an act of Congress. Rights have vested, and State legislation has been framed, for the last fifteen years, on the interpretation of the preemption acts of [illegible] and 1841, which was established contemporaneously with their passage, and has prevailed [illegible] the 30th of June last, or thereabouts [illegible] was cut up, root and branch, by Mr. [illegible] in the case of Superior City—and if [illegible] in the spirit, he would be mortified and shocked at the effects of his ill-advised and unauthorized changes in the laws to which I have referred.

A further word from me in my letter of the 25th, which I deem of important for the investigation of the Congressional Committee. If the charges of the [illegible] officers at Hudson and Superior, against each other, are on file in the Department, as they ought to be, Congress can find out what sort of men President BUCHANAN has appointed to office, or retained in office. Or if they would summon Dr. F. RUFUS SPENCER, or JOHN C. BUNNING, or E. B. DEAN, Jr., or Mr. DANIEL SHAW before them, they would learn of irregularities and illegalities, that ought to cost others besides DEAN their official heads, if they are to be relied upon in their official computations and calculations. I have conversed with three of the four, and know that they agree cordially in abusing each other and the Commissioner of the General Land Office into the bargain. Now if he will retain such men in office, the best they can do is to speak well of him.

[illegible] the pickaninnies of these officials in land computations and sports, and juggling preemption entries and erasing stationery, and all that, (see the documents on file), are nothing when compared with the iniquities that are now being enacted here-abouts, and which may be traced directly to the [illegible] blunder of the Secretary in over-ruling McClelland and Cowles, and the law, in his disposition of the case of any unfortunate [illegible]. Mr. THOMPSON is responsible for the whole, for permitting himself to put his name to a document, prepared by a new and inexperienced clerk, under the dictation, probably, of some hobbled of the General Land Office, who had been there too long to be remarkably honest. As far as I can see, at this distance, the corruptions of that office [illegible]

[illegible] of next month is fixed for the hearing [illegible] the local offices of the case to be made by the [illegible] claimants. Two parties contestants [illegible] in the field—the County Judge and the bogus [illegible] of the villain association [illegible] by the [illegible] members. As the decision of this court will be [illegible] of very great interest to the [illegible]

[illegible] by its abridged [illegible] of what is going on in regard to it.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

RAPE AND CRIMES ON INCEST IN WILLIAMSBURG.—A week ago on Saturday, WILLIAM BURNS, a shipwright, residing in Williamsburg, preferred a complaint against FERNANDO DE CARRIAN, alleging that on the 20th of last June CARRIAN forcibly assaulted and ravished the person of EMMA, the daughter of the complainant. On the same day CARRIAN made a similar complaint against BURNS of incest—of criminal connection with his own daughter. Both cases came up for hearing at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, before Justice FOX. Mr. GALLAGHER, who appeared for CARRIAN, consumed about an hour in endeavoring to procure an adjournment of the case, and, just as it was about to be granted, consented to go on with the trial. Mr. DAVIES, the counsel for Mr. BURNS, first called EMMA A. BURNS, the complainant, to the stand. She swore that, last June, the 15th, while waiting in the back yard of her father's house, her attention was drawn by her younger sister to the defendant, CARRIAN, who was beckoning to her from the second story window. Her sister had been sent by her father to say that his wife wanted her. She went to CARRIAN's house, and up to his room, and as she entered, he asked her to come in and bake biscuit for him. When she refused to do so he seized her, and dragging her into the room, there violated her person. The cross-examination failed to elicit anything which invalidated this statement, and CARRIAN's counsel moved for his discharge simply on the ground of the insufficiency of the affidavit. Mr. BIRDSE said he would make no reply to such a plea as this, and asked that the charge of incest against his client might be taken up. Mr. GALLAGHER then sought time for preparation and again asked for a postponement. Justice FOX said that if he should postpone the case and then continue to go to counsel CARRIAN, it would make it necessary to take out a bonds course for him to compel him to appear and prosecute the case. This he would not have the time to do, and therefore decided that the charge must now be investigated. Mr. GALLAGHER entered a protest, and on his client being called to the stand, refused to examine him. Five days after, he left Court in high dudgeon. CARRIAN stated that he himself witnessed the perpetration of the act charged, in BURNS' front bed-room on the 6th of last July. In his cross-examination he was caught in one or two contradictions. EMMA was again called to the stand, and swore that during last July her mother and father were both at home, and that they left there but once, when they went together to Green Point. Mr. HILL, of Green Point, testified to the good character of EMMA, who had lived in his family as a servant girl for some time, and to that of her father, with whom he had been acquainted for years. Justice FOX committed CARRIAN to prison to await trial, and dismissed the charge against BURNS.

BROOKLYN COMMON COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held last evening. The Law Committee to whom was referred the matter relative to the claim of J. C. COLDMAN to represent the Fourteenth Ward, reported that he had not resided in the city for "three years immediately preceding his election" as required by the charter, and therefore was not eligible. The report was adopted and the City Clerk was directed to call a Special Election, to be held on the 11th of January next, to fill the vacancy. A petition was received asking that Flatbush-avenue be regraded in a neat, thorough and improved manner for a carriage road. The paper was referred to the Grading and Paving Committee. The election of ISRAEL D. NELSON as Chief Engineer of the Western District Fire Department, was confirmed, as also was the election of Mr. MEADES as a Fire Commissioner in the Eastern District. A petition, numerously signed, asking the appointment of a Committee, "to urge upon the Legislature the expediency of abolishing the offices of the Justices of the Peace, and creating in their place District Judges and Courts," was referred to the Law Committee. By resolution of Alderman Warmser the judgment of Jons G. Fake on the city, for which the portraits of the Ex-Mayors were to have been sold to-day, was ordered paid.

LIBERAL CONTRIBUTION.—The Sabbath School connected with the Sands-street M. E. Church, contributed $1,249 50 to the missionary fund on Christmas-eve. The "infant class" contributed $100 of this sum. There are in all about 500 children in the school. On the same evening Mr. H. F. Gaze, one of the teachers, was presented with a copy of Dalmanns's Commentary upon the New Testament, in his volunteer by her class. The teachers of the school presented Mr. Jons G. Fay with a copy of Colton's Map of the World.

MORTALITY IN BROOKLYN.—During the week ending Saturday last, there were only 88 deaths reported in a population of 250,000 souls. Of these, 53 were children and 15 were over 50 years old; 45 of the whole were females. Of the deaths, there were 8 by fevers of all kinds, 10 by convulsions (infants,) 8 stillborn, 2 of old age—100 years old at least,—and not a death by consumption. Sixty of those who died were native.

FAIR OF THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL METHODIST CHURCH.—We are requested to direct attention to the Fair to be held by the ladies of the First Congregational Methodist Church on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. The ladies have undertaken to furnish the new Church now being built on State-street, near Hoyt, and the Fair is held for this disinterested purpose.

A VALUABLE PEAR.—At the Christmas exercises in the Pacific-street M. E. Church, the Pastor, the Rev. Mr. MEADES, was presented with a monster pear, which, for a time, excited some curiosity. It was finally opened, and in the centre was found a check on a specie paying bank for $515, payable to the order of the Pastor.

PRESENTATION.—The newly-elected officers of the Lexington Lodge, F. A. M., No. 310, were duly installed last evening. These exercises concluded, a valuable gold watch was presented to Mr. EDWARD C. ASTEN, a charter member of the Lodge, and who has just been reflected Treasurer.

BURGLAR ARRESTED.—A man named MARTIN CARRAN was arrested in Brooklyn yesterday by a constable from Queens County on a charge of having robbed a storeat Remsenburg a few weeks ago of property valued at $300. He will be taken back for trial to-day.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—On Friday night last, between 10 and 11 o'clock, a man named WM. H. MCKINNEY was attacked by three Irishmen on Duffield-street near Myrtle-avenue, knocked down and robbed of $265. The thieves escaped.

RUN AWAY.—The Inspector of the Third Precinct Police has preferred a complaint of cowardice against a Policeman named WILKIE, in his District, for running away from a party of intoxicated Dutchmen.

FLATBUSH-AVENUE.—It is proposed to Macadamize that portion of Flatbush-avenue where the pavement will have to be removed to lower the grade. With this change the avenue will make a capital place for riding.

Paraguay.

We have advices from Paraguay to Nov. 22.

The Semanario has an article on the collision with the United States, announcing that "the Republic is ready for war if war is to come." It says:

"We are resolved to maintain our rights with all the tenacity their justice authorizes. We shall stand firmly together without being appalled by consequences, keeping ever in sight our outraged national dignity. We do not hesitate to say that this war, when it once shall have begun, will undoubtedly affect the security of our neighboring Republics, and that to preserve their integrity and tranquillity they must admit into their political schemes a sentiment of entire indifference to the attack made upon the Republic of Paraguay."

That the Government of Lopez is extremely anxious to recover the lost relations of friendship with neighboring States is otherwise demonstrated. It is officially announced that it is not the intention of the Government to discontinue its steam line to Buenos Ayres, as had been previously stated. Much feeling is also said to exist in favor of obtaining a resident Brazilian Minister at Asuncion, as a guarantee of future friendly relations with the Empire.

The surveys of a railroad to Villa Rica have been commenced.

The Paraguayan Chambers were about to meet.

French Emigrants from Liberia.

The Colonization Office at Baltimore has letters from Monrovia corroborating the statement that another attempt is making by the French to secure a load of emigrants. The correspondent writes:

"Another French slaver has at anchor at Manna Rock, engaged in buying slaves. She was visited, on the 12th inst., by Attorney-General PAYNE, in H. B. M.'s steamship Electo. Mr. PAYNE and the British commander were forbidden to board the vessel; the latter, however, armed his boats and boarded, in order, as he stated, to ascertain the nationality of the vessel. The Frenchman, on being interrogated, acknowledged that he was engaged in purchasing emigrants; that he had landed a portion of his cargo, and received seven negroes. They are kept under hatches, with gratings on, an armed sentinel being always on the watch. One of the slaves was recognized as a boy who had lived with the late Cyrus PALIM. He had been seized and sold in our neighborhood, to 'Old Sandfish,' by whom he was sold to the Regina Cœli; after the massacre on board, he swam to the shore, and was seized and kept confined by King COJAH, at Manna, until he was purchased by his present French owner. The Frenchman gave him up on the payment of 150 francs, which he stated as the cost, and gave a certificate of his having purchased him as a slave. The man speaks English fluently. The Frenchman denied our jurisdiction, but stated he had orders not to encroach on Liberian territory. An armed boat was left at the Halliards to prevent the future shipment of slaves. The French Commodore is expected shortly, and if the Englishman here is correct, he has additional forces prepared for a quarrel somebody. We are, in the meantime, disposed to fight

DR. SPRING'S OLD BRICK CHURCH.—When this property was sold, a year or two ago, we remember among the precious relics of departed generations that were carefully disentombed, we saw a silver plate, which was nearly all that was left from the coffin of the ancestor of one of the oldest families in New-York. We speak of Mr. BLACK, of the firm of BALL, BLACK & Co. Those old structures were swept away, and a new and a vast edifice has there been erected, now known as the Trans Building. It is the most conspicuous, accessible, convenient, and central spot on the Island of Manhattan. Around it cluster more associations that are tender and inspiring than around any other spot; but the two of the best rooms in that great establishment have been dedicated to one of the most important things that ever attracts the attention of mankind, and that is a spot where the traveler, the walker, the stranger, the habitué, the lawyer, the saint, lady, gentleman, or man of leisure can get the best breakfast, the best dinner, the best lunch, that can be found in the City of New-York for the same amount of money. In the same space of time, CROCK & DUFF are masters of their business, and from everybody who has gone into their establishment, that is a judge in such matters, they have received undivided encomiums.

THAT PAPER!

GAYNETT'S Medicated Paper for the water-closet may be really classed as both a necessity and luxury. It ought to be used by the healthy because all other paper (we make no exceptions) is poisonous either in a large or small degree, to the delicate. Individuals suffering with Piles in any shape will be cured speedily and surely by GAYNETT'S Medicated Paper. Each sheet, let us remind the reader, is water marked with the name of J. C. GAYNETT, and a fac simile of the signature is on each box; any other is spurious and pernicious. Sold at the only dépôt, No. 41 Ann-street, New-York; by Mrs. HAYES of Fulton-street, Brooklyn; and by all respectable druggists, including HAZEMAN, CLARK & Co.

MONDAY, Dec. 27—P. M.

The Official Averages of the Banks in the City of New-York for the week past, ending Saturday, Dec. 25—the particulars of which are advertised by each Bank separately on another page of this paper—present, in the aggregate, the following changes from the previous weekly statement of Dec. 18:

Decrease in Loans	$326,643
Decrease in Specie	230,095
Decrease in Circulation	6,278
Decrease in Gross Deposits	1,107,814
Decrease in Undrawn Deposits	1,040,946

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit and also with the movement this time last season:

STATEMENT OF THE BANKS.

	Dec. 25, 1858.	Dec. 18, 1858.	Dec. 13, 1858.
Capital	$64,422,000	$67,734,735	$67,734,735
Loans	97,042,625	120,716,268	127,655,910
Specie	27,142,009	26,372,274	25,606,577
Circulation	3,352,167	7,359,348	7,710,627
Gross Deposits	76,139,597	86,094,628	110,838,443
Exchanged	12,060,627	20,248,552	20,342,499
Undrawn	62,054,370	59,679,876	69,690,022
In Sub-Treasury	5,801,863	6,866,596	6,235,946

The Bank Averages show a very steady line for Loans and Specie—not unexpectedly so, according to our own calculation of the movement of the week, though the Specie average is better by $700,000 or $800,000 than some other parties appear to have estimated. The Deposits, net, fluctuate through the Holidays more than was generally anticipated. The difference against the Net line is about a million of dollars. For the present week the export and Southern demand for gold will probably be light, while an accession will be made from California of a million and a half, and full half a million from the Sub-Treasury. The market for Money opens to-day with a liberal offering, on temporary employment, to the Stock Brokers, at from 3 to 4 ⅌ cent. The Discount Brokers are doing but little. Exchange for the Boston mail holds firm at 109½@109¾, with a light business thus far.

On the Stock Exchange the business to-day went quite free in the State securities at full rates, Missouris advancing to 90@90½ ⅌ cent., and also in several of the Dividend-paying shares—Panama advancing to 122½ ⅌ cent., or 2½ ⅌ cent additional to the rise of Friday, Pacific Mail to 91½@91, Delaware and Hudson to 98½, Pennsylvania Coal to 61½, and New-York Central to 84½@84¾, closing at 84½@84¾ ⅌ cent. In the Western roads there was a further improvement in prices on the sales at the early Board, but this was not quite sustained by Galena and Chicago and Rock Island in the afternoon. Michigan Central fell off 1½ ⅌ cent on the fiscal statement of the Company for the past six months, which while showing no embarrassment, and but few engagements for the new year, is construed as less favorable than expected for the resumption of dividends. In Railway Bonds, the recovery in Illinois Centrals was sustained, Harlems advanced 1 ⅌ cent, Eries of 1878 and New-York Centrals firm, and La Crosse Land Grants steady at 25@25½ ⅌ cent. The Erie Convertibles were rather lower, and Michigan Southern seconds 1 ⅌ cent better. In Hudson, Harlem and Erie Shares there was an improved demand. Harlem common Stock went to 12½ and the preference Stock to 32½ ⅌ cent. The Hudson Company will take $50,000 or $60,000 more for the December traffic than last season. They add this week a new express train to leave Albany at 3½ P. M. and New-York at 3½ P. M., which will be a great convenience to passengers in landing them at an early hour in the evening. In Reading there was a large and active movement, consistent with the general improvement in all the lines connected with the Coal trade, and the stock advanced to 57@57½ ⅌ cent. The general market left off comparatively dull, after a good day's work. The Bull account is supported with increased confidence as the New Year draws nigh, and several veterans of the Exchange, besides changing their own tactics of late, now predict for 1859 a season of activity and rising speculation in Stocks and Real Estate.

The Bank of Commerce has declared a half-yearly dividend of 3½ ⅌ cent., payable on Monday, January 3. This, we understand, will still leave a surplus of from 3 to 4 ⅌ cent. on the large capital of the Bank, after setting aside a contingent fund to cover all bad or doubtful debts.

The Sub-Treasury received, to-day, $110,499; paid, $452,430; balance at the close, $5,586,466.

The usual half-yearly dividend of the Metropolitan Bank of 4 ⅌ cent. has been declared.

The Michigan Central Road during the past six months earned, in gross $1,114,630
Expenses 571,790
Net Income $542,830
Interest and Sinking Fund 442,066
Net to the stock of $6,000,000 ..... $100,764
Add previous surplus 27,410
To Credit of Income $128,174

MONDAY, Dec. 27.

By order of the Court in the suit of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, vs. W. DONALDSON, Mr. LUNZAW sold the following property:

Two tenement houses on the south side of Thirty-third-street, 220 feet west of First-avenue, each lot 20 x 98 feet 9 inches; bought by LAWM HASNER, for $3,300 each.

Also, the same vs. MICHAEL DOLE, one tenement house north side Thirty-fifth-street, 256 feet east of Second-avenue, lot 16 feet 9 inches by 98 feet 9 inches; plaintiff, $3,000.

Messrs. HAYNES & BLACKWELL report the sale of six through lots (12 in all) about the middle of the block between Fifth and Sixth avenues and Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets, opposite the Columbia College grounds. Price, $40,000. R. W. MARTIN, seller.

Mr. A. C. LOZIER reports the sale of 10 lots, as follows: 5 lots on the south side of Fifty-seventh-street, and 5 on the north side of Fifty-sixth-street, in the rear of the above, commencing 450 feet on each street, east of the Fifth-avenue, for $2,250 ⅌ lot, being part of the block recently owned by HENRY DUNNING, Esq. M. R. RAPAIL, purchaser.

During the last two weeks activity in real estate has sensibly declined. This may be readily accounted for. A portion of the time the weather was extremely unfavorable. The year is drawing to a close, and people are engaged in balancing their accounts. And now we are in the midst of the Holidays.

Albany Cattle Market.

ALBANY, Monday, Dec. 27.

The receipts of Beeves are less than last week, and the quality is about the same; there is a good demand, and prices are well sustained, the range is from 5@6¼c., live weight, and 8c. for choice. The receipts of Sheep are large, and prices are lower; the range is 3@4c. About 3,000 have been sold for this market. Hogs dull and nominal at 6½c. for Hay Hogs, averaging 240 pounds.
